A PROBLEM

As old as the hills yet ever new. How to get things you desire—the comforts of life, a good income, a nice home of your own—is an old problem, yet ever new to young men just entering a business career. One sure way is to spend less than you make and put the balance in a good bank at interest, the First National of Connelville, for instance, where safety is assured and liberal interest paid.—Adv.

CORPORAL EASTON OF CO D, "STILL ON TOP OF THE PILE."
That the boys of Company D, 110th Regiment, have withstood the tests that have recently come to them, the whole world knows. How they themselves feel about it is well expressed in a letter Corporal Joseph W. Easton, Jr., wrote to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Easton of 227 Trevor street, on July 21.

"Some things that I have seen and done in the last week would test the courage of any man," says Corporal Easton, "but I am still well and still on top of the pile. Lieutenant Dillworth has been with the supply train ever since we came over here, but none of our boys are with him. Lieutenant Robinson is in charge of our platoon. He looks after his men in such a way that all the fellows like him. We get to see 'Dilly' (Lieut. Dillworth) almost every day. He brings us rations and that sort of thing.

"Sergeant Chubbey is our gas non-commissioned officer and a good one. He is going to get me a new gas mask tonight."

LIEUT. DILLWORTH WELL AND BUSY ON JULY 21.
A letter received yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. D. K. Dillworth from their son, Lieut. J. M. Dillworth of Company D, 110th Regiment, reports him safe and well on July 21. He was at that time in charge of both transportation and supplies for the regiment.

MEISSGAR SNEAK IS WITH MEN OVERSEAS.
Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Sneak of Green street received word that their son, Meissgar Sneak, has arrived overseas.

ALBERT GRIEST IS OVERSEAS, CARD SAYS.

HOME TO HELP FATHER IN HARVEST FIELD.
Leo Clawson has been granted a six weeks' furlough from Camp Meade that he may help his father, Calvin Clawson, get through with his harvest. Mr. Clawson has two other sons.

Dainty Frocks for Midsummer

War does not make it a necessity to curtail dressing to the exclusion of dainty frocks for midsummer. The materials that make them are not needed by the soldiers, and the boys certainly like to see their wives and sweethearts in dainty frocks. These things look more desirable to them than ever. It is poor business to push economy in dress too far—business must be maintained—that almost goes without saying. In the face of all its difficulties French genius has kept itself occupied turning out apparel to suit the needs—somewhat changed by the war—of its clients.

In the picture above at the right is a frock from Lady Duff-Gordon, in which net is posed over taffeta in a lovely summer gown. It is trimmed with very full ruchings of taffeta, fringed out at the edges, and would be effective in almost any of the light colors or in cream-colored net over a color. Turquoise blue and pale green shades cannot be excelled by any colors used with white net for elegant effects, but it is for the wearer to choose what becomes her most in a color suited to this frock. It is not an extravagant affair and is suited to dinner or evening wear.

Pale beige georgette renders a good account of itself as an afternoon and evening frock in the dress at the left of the picture. Its collar, vester, cuffs and bodice ornaments are braided with silk soutache in the same shade. The bodice is cleverly designed in a modified arrangement of the surplice front.

and georgette makes the short ties that finish the front.

A very new and promising idea appears in the pretty dinner frocks of black net worn over foundations made of embroidered batiste or embroidered swiss organdy. Girdles or sashes of black velvet finish them off and machines is sometimes combined with the net in hands on skirt and bodice. These are delightful interpretations of new war-time ideas in dinner and evening gowns.

Hats Worn at Weddings.
At one of the weddings, at which Lord Strathcona's granddaughter was married, the bridesmaids wore immense hats of rose chiffon and silver lace with water lilies resting against the crown and trailing over the brim. This may be a good idea for a wartime summer bride over here. At another big wedding, the bridesmaids wore coronets of gold leaves—for victory—and from them floated long tulle veils of Joffe blue.

Wide Plaits.
Wide plaits rather than tucks are a feature of modern blouses. Hand embroidery combined with flat lace on georgette is the effective combination in many light-colored blouses, white and dash, though the preference seems to be for the flesh-colored models.

MEETING AT MT. BRADDOCK.

Red Cross Work Boosted There by Connelville Workers.

An enthusiastic meeting of the Mt. Braddock Red Cross, an auxiliary to the local chapter, was held Thursday night in the Methodist church there, with Rev. D. E. Miner, the pastor presiding.

Mrs. C. W. Buckner made the principal address, her subject being "Home Service." Mrs. W. O. Schoenover made an appeal for nurses, and T. J. Hooper, chairman of the Connelville chapter, and Rev. J. L. Proudfoot gave short talks.

John A. Swearingen, a railroad conductor of Kansas City, Kan., who was visiting his brothers and sisters of Dunbar and Uniontown, left today for his western home.

HEDGES IS AFTER CARDINALS

One-Time Owner of Browns May Get Into Game Again by Taking Over National League Team.

The report again is in circulation that Robert Lee Hedges soon will become the owner of the St. Louis Cardinals. The present stockholders recently asked for more time to pay $40,000 to Mrs. Helen Hathaway Britton. The Cardinals are shot to pieces and the attendance in the Mound city is steadily dwindling. Branch Rickey, the president of the club, is a close friend of Hedges, who once owned the Browns. Baseball men say that if the stock can be obtained at 50 cents on the dollar Hedges will buy the franchise.

Roach in Munitions Plant.
Roy Roach quit the Louisville Colonels declaring his legs were so bad he would have to give up playing, but later it was found he had joined one of the steel mill teams in the East. On the same team with Roach are Jack Knight, Steve Yerkes, Eddie Plank and others.

Loss of Power and Wear.
The dirt collected on the outside of the engine is not merely an eyesore. It gets into the bearings and causes loss of power and wear. This shortens the life of the engine. If the dirt is removed regularly this wear is prevented, and the car will last longer.

Curd of Thanks.
Mrs. Cash H. Morrow and children wish to thank those who so kindly rendered aid and sympathy to them during their recent bereavement, the death of husband and father. They desire especially to thank those who sent loving floral tributes as a token of sympathy.—Adv.

It is impossible for an optometrist who has a skilled service to render to state off-hand what his charges will be. An optometrist is not a MERCHANTISING Glasses. ONLY NEEDED TO BE FED Simple Reason Why Imported Engine Could Not Be Persuaded to Do Its Duty.

The first locomotive used on the Champlain & St. Lawrence railroad came from Europe, accompanied by an engineer who, for some unexplained reason, had it caged and secreted from public view. The trial trip was made by moonlight, in the presence of a few interested persons, and it was not described as a success. Later, the imported engineer made several attempts to set the kitten—for such was the nickname applied to this pioneer locomotive—in motion toward St. Johns, but in vain; the engine proved refractory, and horses were temporarily substituted for it.

Meanwhile, the railroad officials called in a practical engineer from the United States, who announced that the engine, which was thought to be hopelessly unmanageable, was in good order and required only plenty of wood and water. His opinion proved correct, for after a little practice the engine attained the extraordinary speed of 20 miles an hour—Proust's Railways of Canada.

Elusive Happiness.

We must remember one thing. It is not absolutely necessary to be happy. It is all very well to talk about happiness, but one of the strange contradictions of life is that we can never find happiness, if we search for it. Happiness is elusive. It will escape us, if we seek to hold it. But if we go our way, if we refuse to lose our faith, no matter how sad we may be, no matter how weary or how disheartened, we will learn to find happiness in little things, in the reading of a book, in the singing of a song, in the making of a dress, in the doing of our work.

It is the last thing indeed that is the real cure for the disillusionment of life that comes to each of us. Work is the great panacea. If we work, and work well, we shall find much to compensate us. And if along the way we choose to pretend that dreams do sometimes come true, who can blame us?—Exchange.

What It Came To.
"I've figured the whole thing out, father," said Mabel. "The car, to begin with, will cost $5,000, which at 6 per cent is $300 a year. If we charge 10 per cent for depreciation it will come to $500 more. A good chauffeur can be had for $125 a month, or $1,500 a year. I have allowed $10 a week for gasoline and $5 for repairs. The chauffeur's uniform and furs will come to about $200. Now let's see what it comes to. Three hundred plus 500—"

"Don't bother, my dear, I know what it comes to," said the old gentleman. "What?" asked the girl. "My dear," said the father impressively, "it comes to a standstill, right here and now."—Exchange.

Carolyn of the Corners

By
RUTH BELMORE
ENDICOTT

(Copyright, 1918, by Dodd, Mead & Company, Inc.)

"He's a very determined man. Once he gets set in a way, he carries everything before him. Mandy Parlow is going to be made Mrs. Joseph Staggs so quick that it'll astonish her. Now, you believe me, Carolyn May."

"Oh!" was the little girl's comment. "There'll be changes here very sudden. Two's company, three's a crowd," Carolyn May. Never was a truer saying. Those two will want just each other—and nobody else.

"Well, Carolyn May, if you're finished your supper, we'd better go up to bed. It's long past your bedtime."

"Yes, Aunt Rose," said the little girl in a muffled voice.

Aunt Rose did not notice that Carolyn May did not venture to the door of the sitting room to bid either Uncle Joe or Miss Amanda good-night. This child followed the woman upstairs with faltering steps, and in the unlighted bedroom that had been Hannah Staggs' she knelt at Aunt Rose's knee and murmured her usual petitions.

"Do bless Uncle Joe and Miss Amanda, now they're so happy," was a phrase that might have thrilled

"Yes, isn't it nice they aren't mad at each other?"

Aunt Rose at another time. But she was so deep in her own thoughts that she heard what Carolyn May said perfunctorily.

With her customary kiss, she left the little girl and went downstairs. Carolyn May had seen so much excitement during the day that she might have been expected to sleep at once, and that soundly. But it was not so.

The little girl lay with wide-open eyes, her imagination at work.

"Two's company, three's a crowd." She took that trite saying, in which Aunt Rose had expressed her own feelings, to herself. If Uncle Joe and Miss Amanda were going to be married, they would not want anybody else around! Of course not!

"And what will become of me?" thought Carolyn May chokingly.

All the "emphases" of the last few months swept over the soul of the little child in a wave that her natural cheerfulness could not withstand. Her anchorage in the love of Uncle Joe and Miss Amanda was swept away.

The heart of the little child swelled. Her eyes overflowed. She sobbed herself to sleep, the pillow muffling the sounds, more forlorn than ever before since she had come to The Corners.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Journey.

It was certainly a fact that Amanda Parlow immediately usurped some power in the household of the Staggs homestead. She ordered Joseph Staggs not to go down to his store that next day. And he did not!

Nor could he attend to business for several days thereafter. He was too stiff and lame and his burns were too painful.

Chet Gormley came up each day for instructions and was exceedingly full of business. A man would have to be very exacting indeed to find fault with the interest the boy displayed in running the store just as his employer desired it to be run.

"I tell you what it is, Carolyn," Chet drawled, in confidence. "I'm mighty sorry Mr. Staggs got hurt like he did. But I mean to tell you, it's just givin' me the chance of my life!"

"Why, man, says that Mr. Staggs and Miss Mandy Parlow'll get married for sure now!"

"Oh, yes," sighed the little girl. "They're married."

"Well, when folks get married they all go off on a trip. Course, they will. And me—I'll be runnin' the business all by myself. It'll be great! Mr. Staggs will see just how much value it is to him. Why, it'll be the makin' of me to be the optimistic youth."

Yes, Carolyn May heard it on all sides. Everybody was talking about the affair of Uncle Joe and Miss Amanda.

Every time she saw her uncle and her "pretty lady" together the observant child could not but notice that they were utterly wrapped up in each other.

Miss Amanda could not go past the easy chair in which the hard-ware dealer was enthroned without touching him. He, so bold as a boy, would seize her hand and kiss it.

Love, a mighty, warm, throbbing spirit, had caught them up and swept them away out of themselves—out of their old selves, at least. They had eyes only for each other—thoughts only for each other.

Even a child could see something of this. The absorption of the two made Aunt Rose's remarks very impressive to Carolyn May.

A week of this followed—a week in which the trouble in Carolyn May's heart and brain settled, until it became unbearable. She was convinced that there would soon be no room for her in the big house. She watched Aunt Rose pack her own trunk, and the old lady looked very grim, indeed. She heard whispers of an immediate marriage, here in the house, with Mr. Driggs as the officiating clergyman.

Carolyn May studied things out for herself. Being a child, her conclusions were not always wise ones.

She felt that she might be a stumbling block to the complete happiness of Uncle Joe and Amanda Parlow. They might have to set aside their own desires because of her. She felt vaguely that this must not be.

"I can go home," she repeated over and over to herself.

"Home" was still in the New York City apartment house where she had lived so happily before that day when her father and mother had gone aboard the ill-fated Duraven.

Their complete loss out of the little girl's life had never become fixed in her mind. It had never seemed a certainty—not even after her talks with the sailor, Benjamin Hardy.

Friday afternoon the little girl went to the churchyard and made neat the three little graves and the one long one on the plot which belonged to Aunt Rose Kennedy. She almost burst into tears at evening, too, when she kissed Aunt Rose good night at bedtime. Uncle Joe was down at the Parlow's. He and Mr. Parlow actually smoked their pipes together in harmony on the cottage porch.

Aunt Rose was usually an early riser; but the first person up at The Corners on that Saturday morning was Carolyn May. She was dressed a full hour before the household was usually astir.

She came downstairs very softly, carrying the heavy bag she had brought with her the day she had first come to The Corners. She had her purse in her pocket, with all her money in it, and she had in the bag most of her necessary possessions.

She washed her face and hands. Her hair was already combed and neatly braided. From the pantry she secured some bread and butter, and, with this in her hand, unlocked the porch door and went out. Prince got up, yawning, and shook himself. She sat on the steps to eat the bread and butter, dividing it with Prince.

"This is such a beautiful place, Prince," she whispered to the mongrel. "We are going to miss it dreadfully, I s'pose. But then—Well, we'll have the park. Only you can't run so free there."

Prince whined. Carolyn May got up and shook the crumbs from her lap. Then she unlatched the dog and picked up her bag. Prince pranced about her, glad to get his morning run.

The little girl and the dog went out of the gate and started along the road toward Sunrise Cove.

The houses had all been asleep at The Corners. So was the Parlow cottage when she trudged by. She would have liked to see Miss Amanda, to kiss her just once. But she must not think of that! It brought such a "gumpy" feeling into her throat.

Nobody saw Carolyn May and Prince until she reached Main street. Then the sun had risen and a few early persons were out; but nobody appeared who knew the child or who cared anything about her.

At the railroad station nobody spoke to her, for she bought no ticket. She was not exactly clear in her mind about tickets, anyway. She had found the conductor on the train coming up from New York a kind and pleasant man and she decided to do all her business with him.

Had she attempted to buy a ticket of the station agent undoubtedly he would have made some inquiry. As it was, when the train came along Carolyn May, after seeing Prince put into the baggage car, climbed aboard with the help of a brakeman.

"Of course, if he howls awfully," she told the baggage man, who gave her a check without question, "I shall have to go in that car and sit with him."

There were not many people on the car. They steamed away from Sunrise Cove and Carolyn May dabbed her eyes with her handkerchief and told herself to be brave.

The station were a long way apart and the conductor did not come through for some time. When he did open the door and come into the car Carolyn May started up with a glad cry. It was the very conductor who had been so kind to her on the trip up from New York.

The railroad man knew her at once and shook hands most heartily with her.

"Where are you going, Carolyn May?" he asked.

"All the way with you, sir," she replied.

"To New York?"

"Yes, sir. I'm going home again."

"Then I'll see you later," he said, without asking for her ticket.

The conductor remembered the little girl very well, although he did not remember all the details of her story.

He was very kind to her and brought her satisfying news about Prince in the baggage car. The brakeman was nice, too, and brought her water to drink in a paper cup.

At last the long stretches of streets at right angles with the tracks appeared—aspalting streets lined with tall apartment houses. This could be nothing but New York City. Her papa had told her long ago that there was no other city like it in the world.

She knew One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street and its elevated station. That was not where she had boarded the train going north, when Mr. Price had placed her in the conductor's care, but it was nearer her old home—than she knew. So she told the brakeman she wanted to get out there and he arranged to have Prince released.

The little girl alighted and got her dog without misadventure. She was down on the street level before the train continued on its journey downtown.

At the Grand Central terminal the conductor was met with a telegram.

sent from Sunrise Cove by a certain frantic hardware dealer and that telegram told him something about Carolyn May of which he had not thought to ask.

The Brakeman Was Nice, Too, and Brought Her Water in a Paper Cup.

CHAPTER XIX.

The Home of Carolyn May.

It was some distance from the railroad station to the block on which Carolyn May Cameron had lived all her life until she had gone to stay with Uncle Joe Staggs. The child knew she could not take the car, for the conductor would not let Prince ride.

She started with the dog on his leash, for he was not muzzled. The bag became heavy very soon, but she staggered along with it uncomplainingly. Her disheveled appearance, with the bag and the dog, gave people who noticed her the impression that Carolyn May had been away, perhaps, for a "fresh-air" vacation, and was now coming home, brown and weary, to her expectant family.

But Carolyn May knew that she was coming home to an empty apartment—to rooms that echoed with her mother's voice and in which lingered only memories of her father's cheery spirit.

Yet it was the only home, she felt, that was left for her.

She could not blame Uncle Joe and Miss Amanda for forgetting her. Aunt Rose had been quite disturbed, too, since the forest fire. She had given the little girl no hint that provision would be made for her future.

Wearily, Carolyn May traveled through the Harlem streets, shifting the bag from hand to hand. Prince paced sedately by her side.

"We're getting near home now, Prince," she told him again and again.

Thus she tried to keep her heart up. She came to the corner near which she had lived so long and Prince suddenly sniffed at the screened door of a shop.

"Of course, poor fellow! That's the butcher's," Carolyn May said.

She bought a penny afternoon paper on a news stand and then went into the shop and got a nickel's worth of bones and scraps for the dog. The clerk did not know her, for he was a new man.

They ventured along their block. The children all seemed strange to Carolyn May. But people move so frequently in Harlem that this was not at all queer. She hoped to see Edna or some other little girl with whom she had come to school. But not until she reached the very house itself did anybody hail her.

PEERLESS IS WAR WORKER

The call of their country's service has been heard by practically all of Great Britain's beautiful and talented peeresses in the front rank of these industrious workers in war activities is the countess of Wilton, who has been devoting herself to war work since the outbreak of the conflict. She has served as a nurse in one of the hospitals where wounded soldiers are being treated and has won the hearts of the soldiers by her tender and sympathetic care. Before she enlisted in the nursing corps she was active in the many bazaars which marked the early part of the war.

It Pays to Be Courteous. Policemen should learn it pays to be courteous. A Pittsburgh bluecoat found such to be a fact. He saw a man and two women getting off a Joplin car, each carrying a heavy suitcase. The officer, seeing that one of the women was having trouble in carrying her baggage, gallantly stepped up and asked that he be permitted to assist her. When he picked it up something inside rattled suspiciously. At police station, says the Sun, 75 quarts of liquor were removed from the suitcases.—Kansas City Star.

Insists That Frail, Nervous Women Can Speedily Become Strong and Vigorous

A Vigorous Healthy Body, Sparkling Eyes and Health-Colored Cheeks Come in Two Weeks, Says Discoverer of Bio-feron.

World's Greatest Health Builder Costs Nothing Unless It Gives to Women the Buoyant Health They Long for.

It is safe to say that right here in this big city are tens of thousands of weak, nervous, run-down, depressed women who in two weeks' time could make themselves so healthy, so attractive and so keen-spirited that they would compel the admiration of all their friends.

The vital health building elements that these dependent women lack are all plentifully supplied in Bio-feron. If you are ambitious, crave success in life, want to have a healthy, vigorous body, clear skin and eyes that show no dullness, make up your mind to get a package of Bio-feron right away.

It costs but little and you can get an original package at any drugist anywhere.

Take two tablets after each meal and one at bedtime—seven a day for seven days—then one after meals till all are gone. Then if you don't feel twice as good, look twice as attractive and feel twice as strong as before you started, your money is waiting for you.

It belongs to you, for the discoverer of Bio-feron doesn't want one penny of it unless it fulfills all claims.

Note to Physicians: There is no secret about the formula of Bio-feron. It is printed on every package. Here it is: Lactin; Calcium Glycero-phosphate; Iron; Pepsinase; Manganese Pentionate; Est. Vitamin; Potassium Citrate; Phenylphthalate; Oleoresin Capsicum; Kolo.

OLD OAKEN BUCKET

This is One of Many in Book of a Thousand Songs.

Samuel Woodworth, the son of a Massachusetts farmer, came to his home in Duane street, New York City, one hot July day, early in the last century.

He lamented the fact that he had no water to drink, but the tepid water of the city, as it was unknown as a household commodity in those days. He exclaimed to his wife:

"What would I not give at this moment for a long draught from the old oaken bucket hanging in my father's well!"

"Samuel," replied his wife, "wouldn't that be a good subject for a poem?" Woodworth sat down and wrote "The Old Oaken Bucket," to which Frederick Smith adapted music from an ancient Scottish melody.

This song, which has lived for a century, is one of the favorites found in The Book of a Thousand Songs, which this paper is distributing to its readers. Turn to the coupon printed in another column of The Courier and learn how to obtain it.

NOW FIRST-CLASS MANAGER

Clarence Rowland of Champion White Sox Finally Given Credit for His Ability.

When Clarence Rowland first assumed the management of the White Sox he was generally ridiculed. Hard-headed Chicago fans called him a "bush leaguer" and said he'd never succeed. A year ago last fall, when the White Sox failed to win the pennant, Chicago fans clamored for Rowland's release. But Owner Comiskey stuck to him and defied the supporters of the team. The winning of the world's championship last fall, therefore, vindicated both Comiskey and Rowland. The latter now is recognized as one of the most capable managers in the big leagues.

LET THE WHOLE COMMUNITY DO HONOR.

To make the memorial service for the honored dead of the 10th Regiment, who have done the best and the most they could in their country's cause, other than a community affair, would be inappropriate. These young men, just as all other young men who have gone out from Conneltsville as officers or enlisted men in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and other branches of the service, belong in the larger sense to the whole community, although none would deny to their immediate friends the right to lavish upon them every tribute of loving remembrance and affection.

These young men come from the homes and firesides of Conneltsville and vicinity. Whatever honor is to be paid to them, aside from those honors which will be conferred for conspicuous bravery on the fields of battle—and there will be many such occasions—should be shared by all the people who have followed by sympathetic interest and pride all that the boys of this section have done and may yet do as defenders of our country's honor and traditions.

It will be fitting, therefore, to so arrange the memorial service for those who have yielded up their young lives for human freedom, that the people of the city and neighborhood may have opportunity to pay their respects through presence at the services. The heart of the whole community has been deeply touched by the first great grief the war has brought to a number of homes. Every true and loyal citizen, whether they personally know the heroic dead or not, has a desire to give some form of expression to the kindly sympathy each feels for those upon whom war's heaviest burden has fallen, while also paying their humble but sincere tribute of respect to those who have made the supreme sacrifice. Such an opportunity can best be provided through a memorial service in which the whole community can participate, as the Ministerial Association is wisely and considerably planning to arrange.

Conneltsville boys have not been at the front "with bells on" during the Marine-Alpine offensive, we can also depend upon them being at the Berlin front when the last bell is rung on Brutal Bull.

The South Siders who want useless notes stopped in the B. & O. yards are sent conservationists. They want the fuel saved to help win the war and the noise saved to help celebrate its victorious conclusion.

It being the determination of the government to have 3,000,000 or more soldiers in Europe by next June would it not be a good plan for the Huns to put a little more "gas" into that "strategic retreat" while the retreat-ing is good?

Even wobbly Spain, in half-nourished and half-pro-German in its sympathies, is beginning to stiffen up to the Kaiser now that victory for the Allies becomes simply a matter of time.

Congress needs to put on considerable more speed if it expects to keep pace with General Crowder's new draft plans.

The weatherman predicts local rains tomorrow. That will merely remind us that we should take the precaution to carry our umbrellas to church with us.

MOTHERS—IN WAR TIME

By Maurice Masterlinck in Red Cross Magazine.

They bear the great grief of this war. In our streets, in our squares, on the roads, in the churches, in all our houses, we brush against mothers who have lost their sons, or who live in an anguish even more cruel than the certainty of death.

Let us try to understand their loss.

Their sons are taken from them at life's fairest moment, when their own lives are on the decline. When a child dies in infancy, its soul seems not to depart, but to wait, in the vicinity of her who brought it into the world, the hour of returning in some new form. But a son who dies at twenty does not return, and he leaves no hope behind him. He takes away with him all that remained of his mother's future, all that she gave him, all that he promised, the cares, the anguish and the smiles that accompanied his birth, the childhood, the joys of youth, the reward and harvest of mature years, the prop and peace of old age. He takes away far more than himself; numberless days come to a sudden termination, an entire line is quenched, a host of faces, of laughter and of games, of laughter and of games, falls under that blow on the battlefield, bids farewell to the sunlight, and returns to the earth, which it will never have known.

And yet, our mothers do not weep as have the mothers of other wars. All their sons disappear one by one, and we do not hear them complain and mourn as in other days, when great sorrows, and great disasters were accompanied by the lamentations of women.

We know not what sustains them and gives them the strength to bear the remainder of their life. Some among them have other children, and we can understand how they lavish upon them the love and the future which death has cut short. Many have never lost, or else they try to recover their faith in the eternal promises. But so many others, whose dwelling is forever desolate, seem to entertain the same hope as those in whom hope has always been alive.

What is it that upholds the courage which we look upon with amazement? When the wisest among us come upon one of these mothers, searching all the while for words which, in the face of the blinding reality of the greatest grief that can smite the heart, shall not have the way of mocking lies, they can find little or nothing to say to her. They talk of justice and the beauty of the cause for which the hero fell, of the enormous and necessary sacrifice, of the remembrance and the gratitude of men, of the unreality of life which is not to be measured by length of days, but by the height of duty and glory attained. Perhaps they add that the dead do not die, that those who are no more live nearer to our souls than when they were in the flesh, and all that we loved in them endures in our hearts.

But as we speak, they sense the emptiness of what we say. They understand that all this is true for those whom death has not plunged into the abyss; that the most vivid memory cannot replace one dear reality which can be touched with hands, and lips; that the most elevated thought is not worth the familiar coming in and going out; the presence at meal times, the farewell embrace, the rapture of the return.

The mothers know it and feel it better than we can, and that is why they make no answer to one's words of consolation, they listen to them in silence, and find within themselves reasons for living, and for hoping. They take up again the burden of their days, without telling us whence they draw their strength, without revealing to us the secret of their sacrifice and of their heroism.

smack, they have all looked alike to the Huns. Red Cross ships have been sent to the bottom; women and children have been shelled in lifeboats. With them nothing has been sacred, nothing has been respected. All that came their way has been fair game; it has been open season over on the high seas for every variety of craft.

But no German U-boat will be able to stay the progress of the good ship "Liberty Loan." Lifeboat of the world's civilization.

Very shortly the "Liberty Loan" is to put forth once more. It will be a short voyage but a tremendously important one to the liberties of the world. It must be a triumphant one. It must end with the bands playing and the colors flying proudly from the masthead. No Spanish galleon of the olden days ever carried such a wealth of treasure as the good ship "Liberty Loan" must bring safely into port.

All of us, for our honor, our equality and our self respect through the years to come, must take part in this greatest excursion the world has ever witnessed.

Get ready, folks, to get aboard. Get your badge of loyalty early. You cannot afford to be left.

Just Folks

Edgar A. Guest.

THE INDIAN GIVER.

I gave them to the country, I gave them to the sea;
I was their tyrant monarch and I gladly set them free.
To the blue skies and the breezes and the ocean's lapping wave,
And the laughter of the summer time,
My richest gifts I gave,
But the days are dull without them,
And my nights are lily black,
And I've turned an Indian giver, for I want my treasures back.

The gunboats thought them lovely and they envied me their charms,
The hills seemed ever coaxing them to settle in their arms,
And the fields of corn called them to crop the soil and find their play,
So in one great generous moment I gave them all away.

I gave them to the gladness of the summer, but I've learned
That my life is cold without them, and I want my gifts returned.

Yes, I've turned an Indian giver!
This and that I'm calling, "Give me children back to me!"
Give me back their gentle mother, I am weary and alone,
And my soul is sick with yearning for the joys it used to own.

I am hungry for the laughter of my merry little pack—
Home is desolate without them. Head my plea and send them back.

Rippling Rhymes

By Walt Mason.

GONE TO WORK.

The village pool hall looks as bare as banquet hall deserted; the loafers used to gather there, unwashed and flannel-shirted. But Crowder's order, "Work or fight," broke up their long vacation, and now the pool hall is a sight, a scene of desolation. The rafters of the courthouse square are shorn of all the slouches, who used to drape their persons there, and air their woes and grouches. They hang there in the long ago, content with their condition; to sit and let their whiskers grow was all of their ambition. For living they had no excuse, their faces showed dejection; they merely threw tobacco juice in every blamed direction. But now they're working by the day, they're plowing and they're hoeing; they're rearing up two babies of bay where only one was growing. To cultivate the fertile soil I see them daily faring; their homes are creaking as they toil, and they are hoarsely rearing. The dungeons of the village jail are empty now and dreary; no Richard Booe within them wall, no William who are weary. The skates who used to beat their wives and steal their neighbors' chickens are driven now to useful lives, they're sweating like the chickens. The old men are shaking things around, from old time run it's tossed us, and when it's done it may be found it's worth whatever it cost us.

"The Sons of Thunder."

M. H. James in Harrisburg Patriot.
Those men who live in Somerset
Are called the "Sons of Thunder,"
"The Sons of Thunder," so
Last night when I saw in the list
Of casualties
The names of those
From Somerset
And other towns
Who fell in France
For Liberty.
I thought, the boys,
The Freesty Sons of Thunder born,
Had done them proud.
And I could see
Them roll along
As "Thunder's Sons"
Would roll.
I heard their guns
Crash loudly there,
I heard the rout
Of that barrage
Which surely made
The Hun believe
That all the gods
Were massed in front.
I thought I saw
The lightning flash
As weapons spoke,
I heard the crash
Of many cheers
As these boys charged
Beneath the canopy
Of Heaven.
And then I saw
Their luck desert,
I saw them fight
Till fighting was no use.
I saw them caught
As in a trap,
And then I heard
Them cheer
Silent, I say
Tidely
To Somerset.

Begins Today

and continues all this week, a general cleaning-up in the furniture departments. After a very busy season and just before the arrival of our big fall stocks, it is a good time to clean-up the odds and ends. There are special designs in beds, there are complete lines of springs, mattresses, pillows, and all sorts of bed covering. Then you will find novel dining room suites, attractive hall and parlor furniture, and yet some very special bargains in porch furniture, swings, chairs, matting, etc. There are some special bargains in linoleum, rugs, window curtains, and numerous other articles of household equipment. Now would be a good time for you to equip the entire house—it is surely a money-saving time.

WAR CHEST FOR SCOTSDALE MAY BE CONSIDERED

One Big Drive to Finance Several Causes Agitated.

UNITED BRETHREN TO GATHER

Annual Conference in September Expected to Bring 300 Ministerial and Lay Delegates to the Mill Town; Entertainment for Visitors Planned.

SCOTSDALE, Aug. 17.—People of the community are considering a war chest for Scottdale. The war chest would give each person a certain amount to pay in and this would be paid regularly at an office that would be known as the War Chest headquarters. The money would then be paid out to the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., K. of C., or Y. M. H. A. In a few days steps will be taken to learn the sentiments of the public.

Gay Reese, Auctioneer.
Real estate, personal property and live stock a specialty. Call 112 Market street, Scottdale, Pa.

—Adv-23, July 8-18

Prepare for Conference.
The annual session of the Allegheny conference of the United Brethren in Christ churches will be held at Scottdale Sept. 17 to 23. All sessions will be in the new United Brethren church. Bishop W. M. Bell of Washington, D. C., will preside. There will be 300 ministers and delegates present. Arrangements to entertain the visitors are being made.

The local conference committee consists of twelve persons. Dr. I. E. Runk is chairman; Maurice Coffman, secretary; Albert Kelster, treasurer; J. B. Hutchinson, chairman on entertainment; George Ferguson, registrar; T. N. Brownfield, H. M. Ruth and C. H. Stoner are given general supervision of the work. The dining room of the church will be in charge of Miss Ella King. The chief of the cooking department is Mrs. D. W. Henshel. In charge of the buying is Mrs. Ridgway, and in charge of the fishwashing is Mrs. George Holten. Each of these ladies have appointed committees whose special work is designated.

Mrs. Mary Ober.
Mrs. Mary Ober was buried from her Alverton home yesterday afternoon. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. William Hamilton, assisted by the Rev. H. R. Lohb, pastor of the Church of God. The pall bearers were Lyman Louke, George Felgar, John Gibbons, James Dodson, John L. White and Will Hafer.

Bare Opportunity
Offered to the ladies of Scottdale and vicinity. If ever our customers had an opportunity to buy needed, seasonable Suits, Coats, Dresses, Waists or Skirts at a price that positively does not cover even the cost of manufacture it is at this great sale which comes to an end in about four days. Ladies' Suits, $25 values, $12.75; Ladies' Coats, $20 values, $9.75; Ladies' Dresses, $20 values, $9.75; Ladies' Georgette Waists, $6 values, $3.49; Ladies' Skirts, $10 values, $4.95; Ladies' Trimmed Hats, worth $5, $1.95; Children's Hats, 75c; Ladies' Hosiery, 10c. Call and see the bargains on display. You won't be disappointed. Bendiner's Broadway Ladies' Store, Scottdale, Pa. See our window. It pays.

Personal.
Mr. and Mrs. N. Diedrich and Miss Katie McArdle left on Thursday to motor to Erie, Buffalo and Rochester. Misses Florence Murray and Eloise Hafer are spending a few days at Onondaga.

F. B. Folk spent yesterday in Greensburg.
Mrs. Jennie Trout and daughter, Mrs. W. Reese Watkins of Alverton, spent Tuesday with relatives and friends in Pittsburg.

Pechin.

PECHIN, Aug. 16.—There will be a patriotic entertainment given by the young folk of Pechin and vicinity for the benefit of the Junior Red Cross of Pechin, Monday evening. They will sing patriotic songs and have drills and say recitations. Everyone who comes will enjoy it.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cole of Pechin, are the proud parents of a new baby girl that arrived at their house Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry McClain and family of Uniontown motored to visit Mrs. John McClain of Pechin, and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Franks of Ketter's station over Sunday. While there they left their daughter, Grace, to remain with grandparents and other relatives of Pechin and Ketter's station for a few weeks.

Miss Coralee Ketter of Clarton, who has been in Connelville visiting her brother, William Ketter and family, for a few days, spent Sunday at her Uncle J. F. Ketter's home at Ketter's station.

Harry Raymond Senior of Ketter's station, is evening paper carrier for Church Hill.

X. L. Hardy, of Hardy Hill, has purchased a new motorcycle from Thomas Cooper of Dunbar.

The stork made his first visit to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Reed of Ferguson, leaving a fine baby boy, which they promptly named Charles Frederick.

John Tensple of Pechin, has purchased a motorcycle from Luther Miller, of Ferguson.

Milton David of Pechin, has resigned his position with W. J. Rainey at Mount Pleasant to accept a position at the American Manganese Manufacturing company.

Mrs. John L. Ketter, Jr., and sons David A. and John L. III, of Clarton, are spending a few weeks with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Ketter of Ketter's station. J. L. Ketter, Jr., was here over Sunday.

Who to Patronize.
Those who advertise in The Daily Courier.

Special Notice—Motorists in Mount Pleasant and Scottdale may secure Willard Service at 216 Pittsburg Street, Scottdale.

Don't Hesitate to Ask Questions

Are you doing enough driving with lights off to keep your battery properly charged?

Are you replacing the evaporation, which is always going on, by a proper amount of distilled water?

Are you sure current isn't being lost daily by some defect in wiring or connections?

Does current flow freely?

If you'll stop the next time you see our service sign, we'll be glad to answer as many questions as you can find time to ask.

And don't forget to include an inquiry about the Still Better Willard with Threaded Rubber Insulation.

NEWS OF THE DAY
AT MT. PLEASANT
BRIEFLY RELATED

Schools of the Borough are to Resume on September 17.

TEACHING CORPS IS COMPLETED

Miss Maude Hayes, Kentucky Young Woman, is Named for Commercial Department; Children Six by January 1 to Enter at Term Opening.

Special to The Courier.
MOUNT PLEASANT, Aug. 17.—The Mount Pleasant borough schools will open September 2. Examinations will be held by the respective teachers for the benefit of the pupils who were conditioned in the spring in one or two branches during the afternoon of September 2. All conditions must be removed and the teachers in charge must be satisfied before the pupil can be advanced to a higher grade. Pupils should consult their teachers about this work before the opening of the school term.

All children who are six years old or who will be six before Jan. 1, 1919, should enroll the first day of school. A vaccination certificate properly signed will be demanded.

Miss Maude Hayes, of Bowling Green, Ky., will be the commercial teacher. The high school course of study will be ready for distribution by August 26. The following members of the 1918 classes have registered their respective educational institutions: Carl Ruder, Pennsylvania college, Gettysburg; Charles Williams, University of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh; Emanuel Volkin, University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia; Sarah Smith, Wilson college, Chambersburg; Naomi Rhodes, California state normal, This is approximately twenty per cent of the last year's class. All of the above named institutions will admit local students without previous examinations.

Garden Party at Bridgeport.
A garden party will be held at Bridgeport this evening for the benefit of the Red Cross. There will be music by the band. Misses Ora and Marie Detwiler will sing. There will be a fish pond, a guessing contest and a cakewalk. Refreshments will be served.

Personal.
Mrs. E. Paul Smith and son have gone to Camp Gordon, Atlanta, Ga., to join her husband who is a chaplain.

TO UNIFY LINES

Of Telephone Companies by Pooling Material and Buying During War.
Postmaster General Burleson issued an order to all telephone companies to confine extension and betterments to meet war requirements and vital commercial needs and to proceed as expeditiously as possible with plans for consolidating and unifying telephone plants, where the consolidation is desired by the public.

In cases where two telephone systems are operating in the same area, the order directs the companies to cooperate in making extensions and betterments, that unification and elimination of waste in money, manpower and materials may be brought about.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"THE SOUL OF BUDDHA"—A five part Fox feature in which Theda Bara, the popular screen star appears in the leading role, is being shown today. The picture is one of Miss Bara's greatest efforts and is one that her admirers should not miss. Miss Bara is supported by an excellent cast and, as in all of the Theda Bara super productions, no expense has been spared to make the picture worthy of the star. The scene shifts to Paris where some of the most sensational acting ever projected on the screen is done by Miss Bara in the Pache quarter. The story tells of a beautiful half caste East Indian girl, Bavaria, who renounces her oath as a sacred dancing girl dedicated to the worship of the god Buddha, thereby incurring the displeasure of the High Priest who vows vengeance. The High Priest secretly loves the girl, who has vowed to devote her life to the worship of her god. Tiring of her existence in the temple she elopes with an English army officer, who marries her and takes her to Paris. Tiring of her life there she becomes a dancer and is hailed as the sensation of the day. Later she is killed for disregarding her oath. A selection of comedy is included. Monday Emily Stevens will be seen in "A Man's World," a five part Metro feature. Thursday Madge Evans, the celebrated child actress, and John Hines will be featured in "Neighbors," a five part World attraction.

THE ORPHEUM.

"LOVE'S CONQUEST"—The photograph is based upon the celebrated play "Gaius Marius," written by Victorien Sardou, the famous French playwright, and the story is one of absorbing dramatic action and intense heart appeal. Mme. Cavallieri appears in the role of an Athenian duchess who repudiates a vow made by her in the shadow of the Cross to wed the plebeian who saved her child from a ferocious lion, but who later becomes the bride of a common huntsman, whose bravery has won her love.

BIG EVENTS FOR DAWSON

Kings of Half-Milers Coming to Annual Race Meet Sept 10-13.

Citizens of Fayette county and residents of the Monongahela river valley will have an opportunity to witness some great racing events at Dawson September 10-13, when the kings of the half-milers gather at Dawson to race off four $1,000 stakes and ten class events at the four day carnival arranged by Harry Cochran.

The meetings this year over the Lake Erie circuit have been far above the average of other years, the horses more plentiful and the class of performances of the first water. The time has been fully four seconds faster, the split race times have increased twenty-five per cent, all of which clearly shows that heats are more hotly contested and the latent racing qualities of the horses are brought out.

There was time when anyone with an ordinary horse could go to the half-mile tracks and race, but now breeding is coming into its own and the well-bred, well-trained horse with a capable driver behind will soon dispatch a field of the cheaper grade of horses racing. The class of horses to be seen September at the Dawson fair will include all the performers that are winning today, and in addition will include a number that have failed to win over the mile tracks in the last company.

ITALIANS NOW PLAYING BALL

National Game of This Country Has Been Taken Up in Italy—Big Aid in Training.

One of the curious effects of the war is the international interest which has been aroused in American sports. Italy apparently is the most recent victim of the baseball game, according to Dr. Felice Ferrero, director of the Italian bureau of information in Washington. Football, as played in America, as well as the national game of this country, also has taken hold of the popular interest in Italy.

The Gazzetta dello Sport, one of the most influential sport journals of that country, is raising a fund for the purchase of baseballs, bats and footballs and the distribution of prizes among the soldiers to stimulate competition. General Pennella, commander of the Second Italian army, in a letter to the Gazzetta dello Sport, says that football and baseball games are of incalculable value in the training for war.
